▲ No Sweat

Effortless and exercise are two words rarely used in the same sentence. However, the $34,880 Arasys III claims to build muscles with little or no movement required. Users connect pads to targeted muscles, which are then sent microcurrent electrical signals via the nerves. The signals cause involuntary movements that, according to the company, burn fat cells and increase the body's metabolic rate, allowing users to lose weight without even breaking a sweat.
